Our commitment to keeping the Singapore community safe

AIG is a founding member of the Together for Safer Roads coalition launched at the United Nations in November 2013 – the first global, private sector-led coalition on road safety. As an advocate of safer communities, AIG Singapore launched a road safety education programme in 2015 to keep children in Singapore safe. Over 2,600 pre-schoolers aged four to six learnt about road traffic rules, how to identify and interpret traffic signs and had the opportunity to drive mini-electric cars around a mock road track.

In 2016, AIG is proud to work with the Singapore Traffic Police (TP) for our road safety education programme. The children will get the opportunity to learn kerb drills from the TP officers, as well as interact with them at each road safety session. We believe that through our programme and with the TP's support, we can inculcate the importance of road safety from a young age, leading to safer roads in the future.
